

PRESIDENT'S CORNER
with Brian Ives

Mewling and puking again

Those of you new to this organization may find it surprising to observe its elected leader still in the first

Age of Man . But if you have been following the current MURA presidency, you expected the progressive retrogression. And it all started because one of our Council colleagues commented early on that my picture looked "too old".

It is on the matter of age that I have been ruminating lately. For example, just what is the age distribution of the MURA membership? Not a simple question when human rights legislation seemingly makes knowledge of a personal birth date a felony. (Surely a concept anathema to Hallmark...) But to serve the whole membership effectively it helps to understand its makeup. By artful sleuthing we did discover that our oldest member is in his 100th year, and you will find more on that in this issue. We also learned that we have 28 members more than 90 years old. Of course, age is but one variable in our membership: McMaster employment function is another.

How can MURA serve you all – now and in the future? To help us answer that question, I ask you to seriously consider coming out to the AGM this year. Yes, I realise business meetings are boring, but necessary. Again this year we have arranged a program outside the formal business, which includes recognizing Stuart Winn, MURA's "founder".

And that's about it for me as my term as President winds down. You do not need to be concerned about any in-vivo images in the next newsletter. The association should by then have elected Helen Barton as your President. I am confident that Helen and the Council will continue to serve you well, and I take this opportunity of thanking the whole MURA leadership for their unstinting cooperation over the past two years. They have kept me focussed on the main goal – serving all our members to the best of our ability. Of course, Shakespeare's Jacques was not to know that in this 21st Century, the 'seventh age' has been assisted by modern medicine and the like so that we are really "sans anything"- and actually making the most of our MURA years!

"THE McMASTER CAMPUS LANDSCAPE"

is the presentation topic for this year's AGM

- Have you seen the McMaster campus recently?
- Do you know about the many new buildings and other campus features?
- About the plans that are "on the books" for the upcoming years?

COME TO THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

- See a presentation of the major changes that have been happening on campus.
- Find out about the Campus Master Plan and the exciting vision for the university landscape.

The presentation will feature many of the major developments of the past ten years. The Student Centre; the Mohawk/McMaster Institute for Applied Health Sciences; two new residences (named to honour Les Prince and Mary Keyes); an athletic centre; restaurants and campus entrances are just a start.

Building projects are ongoing, and there are many more changes planned that will continue to alter the campus you once knew.

A member of the Campus Development Team will present the illustrated talk and answer your questions.

MURA Founder Will Be At The AGM!

A Special Highlight of this year's AGM will be the presentation of Honorary Membership to Stuart Winn. Stuart was a prime mover in the establishment of MURA, and he has maintained a continuous interest in association activities (see, for example, the January MURAnews). If you remember Stuart and his sterling efforts in our early days more than 20 years ago, why not consider coming to the

Here's something we realize will be of interest to local retirees only...

DOORS OPEN HAMILTON 2007

Saturday May 5 and Sunday May 6, 2007

One weekend - only once a year - see Hamilton like you've never seen it before. Over 55 buildings of architectural, historic and cultural significance open their doors for this citywide celebration. And it's FREE! Many will feature tours, exhibits, entertainment and behind the scenes glimpses. Some of these buildings are not normally open to the public or normally charge an entrance fee.

Look for The Doors Open Hamilton 2007 Guide Book in the Saturday April 28th edition of the HAMILTON SPECTATOR.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED: Doors Open Hamilton is an event run completely by volunteers. Why not join the fun - volunteer one day and tour the next. We're looking for enthusiastic volunteers of all ages. An interest in architecture, heritage, design and/or art is an asset. Full orientation provided April 29. To apply please contact Heather at 905-523-4004

...who knows, if you are too late for this occasion, there may be similar events in the future.

Australia's funniest joke...

"We all went clubbing, returned to my apartment, talked until dawn and then crashed until late the next morning. When we asked the guys if they'd like some breakfast, they went and got their until-then-unmentioned girlfriends out of the back of the camper van to help to cook it."

Germany's funniest joke...

A general notices one of his soldiers obsessively picking up pieces of paper and saying: "That's not it.", "That's not it". Eventually he's seen by a psychologist, who concludes that he's deranged and issues him with a discharge notice. The soldier picks it up, smiles, and says: "That's it."

Did you know that by including McMaster in your will, you can achieve your philanthropic goals, while at the same time reducing your taxes? If you would like to talk to someone about giving options, please call the Office of Gift Planning at 905-525-9140, ext. 23447.

The Annual Meeting of College and University Retirees Associations of Canada (CURAC) will take place this year at

University of Windsor and St. Clair College
May 23-25

The theme of the meeting is:

“Securing The Future: Pensions and Health Benefits”

Registration is available to all MURA members. For full details of the programme and reservations please visit <http://www.curac.ca/>

* * * * *

The following is an article submitted by our President Brian Ives for publication in the CURAC newsletter.

“ONE LARGE TENT”

When perusing the membership statistics of CURAC member organizations, one is struck by the inconsistency of the numbers. McMaster and Guelph have more than twice the membership of Toronto, and the other large Canadian institutions all report memberships under 500. It has been properly noted that membership qualifications are quite varied, generally related to whether retirees pay dues and which employee groups are included in the organization.

I would like to make a case for the current “McMaster Model”. Here the retiree association, MURA, which was founded in 1984, has always viewed that all retirees should be members. However, to make the organization work, income was required. Consequently, very early on a fee was instituted and only members who paid it were deemed “regular”. But in order to keep all members informed of those matters required by the MURA constitution, the fee paying members subsidized the cost of printing and mailing 2 newsletters per year to the non-paying members.

When I took office as Vice President, there was something about this two-class system which did not sit well with me. It was clear that our Association was representing all retirees, for example through voting membership on the Salaried Pension Trust Committee, and was attempting to serve all members in every way. Like all colleges and universities, our retiree population is quite diverse, in terms of the original employment “status” of our members. Specifically at McMaster, we have—listing our convenient abbreviations in alphabetical order and without explanation--Affiliates, Clinical Faculty, Hourly, Faculty, Research Associates, Staff and The Management Group. Furthermore, the Hourly group is as diverse as the whole comprising, among others, cleaning staff, food services, security and trades. MURA also considers pensioned survivors of retirees as Associate Members.

On investigating whether we might find funding support from those organizations which represented the various groups while employed, we hit “paydirt” right away! The president of the (unionized) staff association immediately liked the idea of doing something to support the retired staff members and immediately pledged to fund their involvement in the retiree organization. That helped us sell the idea to the Faculty Association. To support The Management Group (basically union “exempt” staff), we approached the University President, who quickly agreed. It was not so easy to find a funding source for the other groups of retirees, but since they did not represent a significant source of voluntary revenue we were confident we could operate MURA with the income from the three major sources.

Consequently, MURA is now on a sound financial basis without relying on member financial contribution and without some members paying for services enjoyed by others. Furthermore, we feel we can serve all McMaster retirees to the extent they wish to participate. A few years ago, MURA was instrumental in contacting the necessary large percentage of its membership to agree to a retirement pension surplus redistribution, and being able to serve everyone was an important feature of that activity. We believe we can assist with any similar initiative which might arise in the future.

MURA enjoys an excellent operating “arms length” relationship with the university administration, and we have every reason to believe this close collaboration serves all McMaster retirees well. And it sure helps when the whole retiree population is in the same big tent!

M. Brian Ives, President, MURA
March 2007

A Visit with Menno DeGroot

Menno DeGroot ? Wow, there's a name from the past! But if you had a research grant in the 1960's, you will certainly have dealt with Mr. DeGroot! He with the meticulously maintained handwritten ledgers which could tell you just how much money you had, or had not, in your account. Before computers, Menno DeGroot kept all the books that were needed.

We were delighted to discover that Menno is still with us, and is in fact our senior member, being now in his 100th year! A visit by Joan Parker and me to meet Menno was arranged by his daughter, Yoka and son-in-law, John. Sadly, he has recently developed some dementia, and when he speaks it is generally in his native Dutch. But nevertheless, our visit seemed to energize him and it was a truly happy occasion.

Menno brought his family to Canada in 1953 after a significant career in Holland, which included the curatorship of a museum. After a few years in various pursuits in Canada, our Prof. Kleerekoper (Biology) suggested he come to McMaster and in 1959 he was appointed by Dr. Thode to the position of Research Grants Officer. He retired from McMaster in 1974.

We congratulate our senior member, and wish him the continuation of a long life. We are particularly pleased to have been able to locate Menno at this time and are looking forward to contributing to his centenary celebrations. We'll let you know!
